The brilliant and spirited concert which marked the fifth anniversary of the birth of VILTIS was highly successful. The program opened with the delicate singing of three Lithuanian songs by Alice Stephens' trio, Cecilia Pukonis, Dolores Jenkins and Josephine Wirba. Stephany Novicky gave a masterly reading of the Bach GIGUE and the Chopin E MAJOR ETUDE, with DeFalla's Malague-na for an encore. Anthony Giedraitis, a robust tenor, sang two folk songs, and followed with a stalwart rendition of I'M FALLING IN LOVE. A novel and exotic touch was provided by Hindu airs on the sitar by Ram Rao Bhato-dekar; the melodies were strange to modern American ears, and the bizarre twanging of the instrument was fascinating; Edna Irene Valverde's rhythmic basis of the tabolas was captivating. Lulu Raben, a masterly violinist, played her own intricate arrangements of two Lithuanian folk tunes. The strictly musical portion of the program ended with Loretta Brazaitis' charming interpretation of two Lithuanian songs, the second supported by a violin obbligato of Miss Raben.

At this point, the color guard of Don Varnas Post 986 took over, posted the colors, held a moment of silent memorial for the VILTIS war dead, and presented a plaque to V. F. Beliajus, honoring him for his activity during the war and when VILTIS was a service letter dispatched monthly to the boys in the armed forces.

After a short intermission, the second half of the program devoted to folk dancing opened with four Lithuanian dances by the Ateis Folk Dancers; the pantomimic RYE FIELD, the flirtation SHEPHERD DANCE, the ludicrous GOATS, and the kaleidoscopic MALUNE-LIS. Then in rapid succession came the HIGHLAND SWORD DANCE and HIGHLAND FLING by Angus MacDonald and his diminutive sister Margaret Anne—

Beliajus' sustained and poetic Palestinian-Arabic CAMEL DANCE; Chico and Chabela Hernandez' sprightly Mexican JARANA YUCATECA; Edna Irene Valverde's charmingly graceful Spanish SEVILLIANAS; V. F. Beliajus' historically amusing Hassidic-Jewish MERRY WEDDING DANCE; Myroslav

MYROSLAV STODOLNY, Canadian-Ukrainian Kozachok dancer whose vigorous and difficult stunts in his Kozachok amazed the audience.

Stodolny's energetic Ukrainian KOZACHOK; the MacDonald youngsters' cutly dextrous SAILORS HORNPIPE; the Hernandez' Mexican JARABE with intricately varied rhythms; and finally the Northwestern University Settlement Festival Dancers in two Polish dances that concluded the program in a spirit of mercurial festivity.

The costuming thrust was lovely and varied; from the exquisite evening gowns of the musicians to the resplendent and ornamental costumes of the dancers, the entire program was a fast-moving symmetry of color and motion, with just the right proportion of climax and relaxation. The organization and the continuity of the program, whether by direction or cooperation, were efficient. All performers so thoroly enjoyed what they were doing, that their enthusiasm and good spirits were contagious and reflected in the audience.

B.I. Burton Lawrence provided authoritative and rhythmic accompaniments at the piano for most of the program. After the program Ray Braise and his orchestra provided excellent folk and social dance music to which the guest demonstrated their terpsichorean ability.
